ASTRONOMY. "What am astronomy?" asked Prof. Green he came forward. "Some of you may link that astronomy has sunthin to do wid lirosin an' steamboats, but sich am not de se. We hev it wid us as we walk around de day, an' it nebber runs away when we y down at night. Astronomy is de y, moon, sun, stars, an' sich. Dar was a time ben nobody knowed dat dis world revolved ound. Everybody s'posed it was a great hunk of sunthin' dumped down like a ck in a mudhole. It was a long time befo' anybody knowed dat de world had an axis to revolve on. A good many folk felt sorry for it, an' most obery body would ha' shipped to buy an' carry it, present it, to her. It

"De study of astronomy am sunthin' dat e cull'd man orter be at day an' night. It am like sweet battenmilk—you can't git too much of it. When you haa come to know dat de moon am indubiated by a race of people 'leven feet high an' hev'in' three eyes—dat de smallest star am as big as de City fall—dat each eand of a rainbow rests on a cold mine—when you come to sit astronomy

"I hev wid me a few pamphlets on de subject of astronomy, an' arter de meetin' de journals de same can be had of me at twenty-cents each—no trust."

The meeting then adjourned to give the visitors opportunity to make personal acquaintances, and when our reporter withdrew Waydown Bebee was still looking for the J-11.

"Ring out, wild bells, to the wild sky,
 The dying cloud, the frosty light;
 The year is dying in the night;
 Ring out, wild bells, and let him die.

 "Ring out the old, ring in the new;
 Ring, happy bells, across the snow;
 The year is going, let the horns go Ring out the false, ring in the true."
 —In Memoriam.
 Thus do we greet the, Janus, two-headed

Open doors, O Knaans, deity who presides over open doors, standing, as thou dost, on the threshold of the New Year, with a face of regret for the past clouded by the touching sadness of a parting, sent with the sunshine of hope irradiating the countenance of thy other and brighter self.

Ever thus it is, as the scythe of time sweeps the full heads of ripened grain into the storehouse of our lives; thus do we grieve and sigh, as we reckon up the results of the year's harvest, over the "might have been," and involuntarily arises to our lips,
"God's pardon rest upon the dying year, God's blessing fall like dew upon the young, new months ahead." Tenderly do we wish

“But tho’ his eyes are waxing dim,
And tho’ his foes speak ill of him,
He was a friend to me.
Old year, you shall not die.
We did so laugh and cry with you,
I’ve half a mind to die with you,
Old year, if you must die.”

But the chasm between the old year and the new is bridged by the flashing rainbow

The observance of the New Year dates far back into historic times. China, the deepest child of civilization, presses to the front with her "flowery kingdom" and almond-eyed people. Egypt follows, under the shadow of her pyramids, with the ibis of Thoth, the genica of the New Year, over the season of which, the rising of Sirius, the dog-star, cast its regulating beams; while the Persian exchanges his ner-ruc or presents of eggs.

The martial Roman, casting aside his sword and armor, arrayed himself in snowy white on the first day of the New Year, and in joyful procession bled to the temple amid clouds of incense and flaming altars, and peace and happiness cast their perfect glory over all the land. Later on, visiting be-the order of the day, and grotesque masques wandered at will throughout the streets of the capital, with many quick and fantastic pranks.

Strenas, for luck, were exchanged, and all the vast possessions, over which watched gates of Rome, were given over to peace and good-will toward all mankind. The Christian folk, forbidden to join in any of the pagan observances, spent their time in acts of charity, meditation, and prayer.

ival of the Nativity, New Year's day was recognized as the commemoration of the Circumcision, and solemnly kept as such in the various branches of the Eastern and Western Churches; but it was not until late in the sixteenth century that the first day of January was universally accepted as the and touchingly appropriate does it seem that old and dear friends, who have stood side by side through good and evil, trials and happiness, should pass into the new order of things hand in hand. In the old town of Coventry, England, on New Year's Day, the sounds through the quaint streets the
